Recruitment Consultant, St Albans

Our clients are a Professional Recruitment agency seeking a trained consultant to join its team of technical consultants.

The company is a preferred supplier to many of the largest organizations in the electronics & defence sector. They enjoy an excellent reputation for selecting only the best matches for our customers and clients. Their methods are based on account management and the right individual will be able to develop new customers and ensure close contact with the current customer base.

You will need an HND or degree background in a relevant subject and at least 2 years successful recruiting experience. Our clients are a permanent placement organization but would welcome applications from individuals with experience in permanent or contract recruitment.
